Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a support structure for holding an electronic camera, a digital camera or the like in an operative posture and allowing it to be attached to the body of an operator or mounted on a camera support in a camera room or the like. 2. Description of the Prior Art A general electronic camera, digital camera or the like is usually held in an operative posture by a support device when the camera is mounted on a camera support in a camera room or the like. Various examples of such a support device are described in U.S. Pat. Nos. 3,901,605, 4,298,100, 4,682,407, 4,762,439 and 5,164,661. FIG. 22 is a perspective view showing an example of a support device for holding an electronic camera, which is incorporated in the electronic camera of U.S. Pat. No. 4,298,100. The support device is provided with a column 1 which is adjustable by rotating it about an axis 2 and a device 3 which includes a holding portion 3a having a C-shape, and a base 4 which has the holding portion 3a detachably secured thereto. The holding portion 3a is provided with a U-shaped portion which is fitted over a protrusion 5 provided on a bottom surface of the column 1. When the column 1 is moved upward as shown in FIG. 22, the C-shaped holding portion 3a is fitted over the protrusion 5 and the base 4 is in a detachably secured state. This allows the device 3 to be vertically mounted on the column 1. The base 4 is detachably secured to the column 1 by a screw 8. Therefore, when the base 4 is tightened up, the C-shaped holding portion 3a is fixed to the column 1. The column 1 is fitted over a recess 1a of a camera 6. An operating portion 7 of the camera 6 is mounted on the column 1. The operating portion 7 includes a shutter button 7a and an LCD display 7b. A power cord 7c of the camera 6 82157476af
